THE BULL FAMILY.

In presenting a paper on the Bull family to the Montgomery County Historical Society, in answer to the request of its secretary, the author begs the patience of members present, and also that any errors made by ignorance of locality be excused. As he has never been in Norristown, he is personally unfamiliar with the neighborhood and although a native of West Chester in the adjoining County of Chester, it was not until recent years that it was known to him that any of his Bull forbears were residents of Perkeomen, and not until very recently, that any were buried in the churchyard of St. James. It would have been a great pleasure to him to come to the meeting at the church, that he might become acquainted with the descendants of those who knew his ancestors during the early settlement of Pennsylvania, but long distance and duty intervene to prevent that honor.

The first record of the Bull name in the settlement near Philadelphia is given in "The First Settlers in Newton Township, New Jersey" by John Clement, which mentions Richard and John Bull. Thomas and Richard Bull are known to have gone to Gloucester between 1686 and 1698. Richard Bull was a surveyor employed by William Penn in 1712 to 1716. In 1686, by deed, recorded in Minute Book E, Vol. 5, page 490, Robert Longshore conveyed a lot to Thomas Bull, merchant of Philadelphia, who by endorsement on the same deed, dated 25th, 7th month, 1703, conveyed the same to Richard Bull of the County of Gloucester and Province of New Jersey, yeoman, who requested and is granted a patent, Minute Book G, 96, Vol. 1, 1703.

By Will Liber 2, page 192, West Jersey Wills, dated October, 1722, Thomas Bull, brother and heir apparent, released to Sarah, widow of Richard Bull, all his right to property. By will dated October 30th, Thomas Bull of Gloucester, New Jersey, left to his son, Thomas Bull, of Pipe Dill (or Hill), County of Stafford, Kingdom of England, all property except church land and grave yard left to congregation to build church. Again Sarah Bull, widow of Richard, left by will of 1742, Liber 8, page 190, West Jersey Wills, property to son-in-law, Joseph Harrison, granddaughter, Hannah Stokes, grand children, John, William and Elizabeth Henchman, grand sons, Samuel and John Clement, and daughter Priscilla Harrison.

In the early part of the eighteenth century the first record of a Bull appears in Montgomery County in the agreement "With John Bull of Parkeomink for 200, 300 or 400 acres of land in part of Manor of Gilberts, which makes a corner of London County, and land of Edward Lanes for 30 pounds, and the quit-rent of 10 shilling sterling for each hundred acres to be paid within three months after date of warrant, which is 6th of first month 1716-17." Minute Book H, 12th 1st month 1715-6. "Signed a patent to John Bull, 300 acres Gilbert Manor mentioned in page 92, dated 25th, 1st month 1716. Minute Book H, 18th, 1st month, 1717-18." This is also noted by Egle: "In Providence Book is made note of John Bull, yeoman, as follows: 1715-1720, inventoried Eben Williams estate. 1716 purchased 400 acres. 1725-29 signed petition with others along Perkiomen Creek for establishment of township there. 1724 in a jury of six, laid out road from Noroton Mills to Manatawney road in Providence."

In Buck's history of Montgomery County, page 99, John Bull is noted as a resident of Lower Providence in 1734. John Bull's will dated October 13th, 1736, is a matter of record. He left his property to his wife, Elizabeth, and to his children, Thomas, Richard, William, Joseph, Elizabeth and Dorothy.

Of these, descendants of the two eldest sons are known, Joseph is reported to have married an Indian and to have gone to Ohio, where he is said to have been a territorial Lieutenant Governor and to have died in 1788. It has not been possible to verify this; his name is mentioned in the Proprietary Tax List of Lower Dublin, Philadelphia, in 1769. One authority states that John Joseph Bull was born May 27, 1721, in Skippack township, Philadelphia County, now Montgomery, of Quaker parents. In 1742 he removed to Bethlehem and united with the Moravians, and shortly after entered their Indian mission service.

For forty-five years he labored among the Indians of Pennsylvania and Ohio, and neither the murder of his son by the whites at Guadenhuetten on the Muskingum, nor his own captivity could quench his zeal in the service. In 1746 he married Christina, a converted squaw, with whom he lived for forty-one years and had by her two children.

By the Indians he was given the name of "Schebosch," i. e., "running water." He died at New Salem, Ohio, September 4, 1788. D. P. R. Vol. 3, 147.

Thomas Bull, born in 1705, lived in Montgomery County, died in 1747 and was buried in St. James church yard. Being the elder, we will take up this family line first and carry it through, as the families of the two brothers drifted apart and are not historically connected together. In 1738 the name of Thomas Bull is recorded as a vestryman of St. James church. He was married to Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Richard Adams, whose wife was Alitie or Alse Opdengraeff of Holland. This family line is well known and is of record. By the will of Thomas Bull, dated March 13th, 1745, he left his property in Worcester County, Philadelphia, to his wife in trust for the children, of which there were six at the time of his death in 1747. Of these children the descendants of the three sons are known, of the daughters there is no record.

The eldest son, John, born in 1731, lived to the age of 93 and was very prominent in the history of Pennsylvania before, and during the Revolutionary War. That he was a resident of Montgomery County is proved by an article from "Historical collections of the State of Pennsylvania, by Sherman Day, 1843." "Norristown has grown up latterly since the Revolution; it was included within the limits of the Manor of Norriton, which belonged to William Penn, Jr., and, which he sold, when in this country to enable him to settle the extravagant debts incurred by his youthful follies. William Trent and Isaac Norris purchased it for 850 pounds. It included the present township of Norriton, the ground upon which it stands was a farm in the time of the Revolution, belonging to Mr. John Bull, who in spite of his name was a stanch whig, and the British burned his barn for him as they passed on towards Philadelphia. John Bull sold out to an academy at Philadelphia." From the history of Montgomery County, Buck, 1859, page 88, there is as follows: "John Bull of Limerick township bought 543 acres and mill of Mary Norris for 4,600 pounds or $12,265, Barbadoes Island included 88 acres. Sold in 1777 to Rev. W. Smith of Philadelphia for 6,000 pounds, Norriton first house." In the records of St. James church John Bull is mentioned as member of Vestry in 1760. In the appendix of Buck's history, is given the following sketch:

"John Bull, native of Providence Township, where family had resided for several generations. In 1771 lived in Limerick, Justice of Peace of County Court. Purchase of Norriton made on September 17th, 1771. In 1775 was one of twelve members that met in Provincial Convention, object to prevent importation of slaves. The same year was authorized to enlist eight companies under his command. With three others represented Philadelphia County in convention, which framed constitution 28th September, 1776. November sold land (this is probably incorrect). Confirmed Justice of Courts, August 31st, 1778. Not long afterward moved to Berkeley County, Virginia, built mill on Opeckan Creek."

This was some time after the Revolutionary War, and was only temporary, for John Bull moved in 1785, and with his wife lived and died at Northumberland, Pennsylvania. In the Pennsylvania Archives John Bull is listed for taxes in Providence Township in 1769, and in Norriton in 1774 and 1779. In Wyoming Township and White Deer Township of Northumberland in 1781-1785, and 1786 and in Point Township of Northumberland in 1787. He is also credited with collocting corn supplies November 25th, 1775, and January 20th, 1776. On May 8th, 1777, John Bull was appointed Colonel of State Regiment of Foot, and on June 17th, 1777, was appointed Adjutant General.

10. In December, 1777, was ordered to command Second Brigade Pennsylvania Militia after capture of General Irvine. Was master of meeting of Masonic Lodge at Valley Forge during encampment.

John Bull married Mary Phillips, whose father and mother had emigrated from Wales as soon as they were married, as related by this article.

Copied From Norristown, Pa., Herald.

Written by F. A. Hassler, M. D., who was a grandson of Mrs. Michael Nourse, who was a Miss Rittenhouse, who was a grand-daughter of Mrs. Mary Bull, who was a Miss Phillips. Mrs. Michael Nourse wrote for Mr. Hassler, "A sketch related to me (Mrs. Michael Nourse) by my beloved grandmother, Mary Bull," as follows: "My grandmother, one of a noble family in Wales, left her native country on account of marrying one whom she loved (Mr. Phillips) before she was of age. By law it being a death penalty for stealing an heiress.

Collecting what property they could they came to this country and settled in Chester Co., Pa. They had two children, a son named Stephen and a daughter named Mary. Mrs. Phillips died and the children went to live with an aunt and uncle named Bourn, who educated them religiously and well. Mr. and Mrs. Bourn had a son named Stephen and Mrs. B. intended that Mary Phillips should marry this son, but he was so mischievous and plagued her so much, that she could not love him.

When she was sixteen her aunt took her to her room and showed her all the things she intended for her son, Stephen's future wife—her damask gowns, pretty jewelry and other things, but Miss Phillips understood her, and said to herself: "Marry Stephen, I cannot and therefore I must remove." She left and went to live with an old gentleman, William Bull, and his wife.

She took a room and paid for it by assisting them. Being both good and pretty right glad they were to get her. She soon had suitors but did not wish to marry. She loved her Bible and loved God and He took care of her. Her father, Mr. Phillips, died; her brother, Stephen Phillips, married. She refused several offers, but at last seeing Mr. Bull, and observing how careful he was of his widowed mother and sisters she thought she might be happy with him, so they were married.

I have the following certificate before me: "These are to certify whom it may concern, that John Bull and Mary Phillips were lawfully married according to the constitution of the Church of England on 13th day of August, 1752.

WM. CURRIE."

They prospered in worldly matters and were respected by all.

Before the first war with England they raised a large family. Their daughters were educated at the best schools in Philadelphia. Their only son, an accomplished physician and a good linguist, was appointed a surgeon in the army and was taken prisoner at the battle of Brandywine. Their eldest daughter married Benjamin Rittenhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Bull's second daughter, Anna (who afterwards married Colonel Smith of Virginia), a very lovely and accomplished girl, had received a fine education in Philadelphia and moved in the first society in that city.

Their second daughter married Col. Smith of Virginia. Their third daughter married Mr. Nourse, for many years Register of the United States Treasury. Their fourth daughter married Col. Boyd of the Revolutionary Army. Their fifth daughter married three times, first to Doctor Young, after his death to Mr. Haines, a wealthy Philadelphian, and lastly to Mr. Lloyd. Mrs. John Bull lived to be 81 years old. One particular circumstance of her life deserves to be remembered. When General Howe was in Philadelphia he made a day's journey from the city. Mr. Bull's farm at Norristown, where he had a large store, was found to be a suitable stand for the Army. Howe took possession of the farm and store.

Mrs. Bull had given most of the contents of the store to the poor American soldiers who came there without food or clothing. She retired to a little back room on the entrance of General Howe. Two days and nights from this room she watched their proceedings. She had her youngest child with her and begged Howes' washerwoman for a piece of bread for her.

The woman gave her some bread, went into her room and took all the sheeting, table linen and clothing. They (the British servants) dressed themselves in her best clothes, and swore that the d-d rebels clothes fitted very well.

The General came to Mrs. Bull and said: "Madam, if you will send or write a note to your husband and prevail upon him to join us, I will take you to England, present you to the King and Queen. You shall have a pension and live in style." Mrs. Bull looked him in the face and said: "General, my husband would despise me, and I should despise myself if I did so." He said no more. One of his aids came to her and said: "Madam, had you not better send and have your stock gathered somewhere out of the way to protect them? This was done to save themselves the trouble, for they were taken to the slaughter.

A large old-fashioned clock stood in one corner of the dining room. One of Howe's aids went to open it. The General said: "Let that alone," and it was not disturbed. In the bottom of the clock Mrs. Bull had in a desperation thrown two hundred pounds in hard money paid her a few days before. When the stock had all been taken and everything possible been destroyed the General came again to her and said: "Is there anything I can do for you, Madam?" Mrs. Bull, looking him full in the face, said: "General, I only wish you to deal by me as you would wish God to deal by you." He lowered his eyes and said: "Madam, there shall be no further done," and he left.

After that fire was put in the cellar to burn the house and a party of Hessians sent back to burn what wheat was left. When the army left, a fire was found in the cellar, which was put out by Mrs. Bull, with a bag of common salt. She then went out and threw herself down at the foot of a big tree and prayed to God that if He took anything else from her, He would not take away his love and favor. She said that if any one had spoken to her, she could not have heard more distinctly these words: "I will be a Father to you, you shall be my daughter, saith the Lord Almighty."

Elizabeth, who married Daniel Rittenhouse.

Anna, who married John Smith of Virginia.

Ezekiel W., M. D., Hospital Surgeon, U. S. Army, died single.

Maria Louisa, who married Joseph Nourse.

Rebecca, who married John Boyd of Northumberland, Pa.

And Sarah, who married first, Benj. Fowler Young, M. D., second, Josiath of Germantown and Northumberland, third, Milian Lloyd of Virginia.

Extract from a newspaper February 5, 1811.

Died suddenly on the morning of the 23rd instant, in the eightieth year of her age, Mary, wife of Gen. Bull of this town (Northumberland, Pa.). We are informed that Gen. Bull and this estimable lady had lived together as man and wife for fifty-nine years. By her death the poor have lost a liberal and sincere friend, &c., &c. On Sunday her remains were interred in the Quaker burial ground, attended by her relations and a very numerous respectable concourse of the inhabitants.

Previous to the grave being closed General Bull, although much reduced by sickness and old age, addressed the audience in the following words: "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord. May we who are soon to follow her be as well prepared to die as she was——" and sank exhausted.

Northumberland, March 16th, 1850.

Dear Sir:—

My mother wishes me to return her thanks for your attention in acquainting her of the illness of your dear mother, also to your daughter Mary for the information of the peaceful exit of my aunt to a better world. Mother was much affected when she heard of my aunt's departure, but she looks forward to meeting her ere long.

My mother would have written but has an attack of influenza which has weakened her so that she is incapable of holding a pen. She was gratified by your particularly mentioning your children. She retains her affectionate disposition and takes interest in her relatives. She desired to be kindly remembered to you and tender her sincere sympathy to Mrs. Nours and yourself and family in your bereavement. I would also offer my own, with sentiments of regard.

SARAH H. B. SMITH.

Chas. J. Nourse, Esq.

The Bull family reported by my mother, February, 1884. In reply to Mrs. Marshall, Miss Sarah Bull afterwards, Mrs. Haines, Mrs. Young and Mrs. Lloyd, had a sister married to Captain John Lloyd. (Old Mr. and Mrs. Bull lived with Mrs. Boyd and are buried in Northumberland, Pa.). John, son of Mrs. B., died unmarried. William, son of Mrs. Boyd, married W. R. Smith, grandson of the Provost of the University of Pennsylvania, he moved to Peoria, Ill., died, left John Smith, cashier of Bank of Illinois, Mary S. married in Illinois. Rebecca and Anne, unmarried.

Elizabeth, second daughter of Mrs. Boyd, married Dr. Lathy, moved to Indiana or Illinois, and has two sons.

Josepha, third daughter of Mrs. Boyd, married Freeman Hadby, president or vice president of Erie R. R., lives on the Hudson river, had three children, two daughters and one son.

Mrs. Haines had one son, died unmarried. One daughter, Caroline Young, married Joseph, son of Michael Nowell of

Mrs. Casper Haines was, I think, sister-in-law to Mrs. Young. Captain Boyd was said to have been a very brave man, saved his life by running the gauntlet when taken by the Indians.

The reason why Dr. Bull took his own life was never told. His sisters were much attached to him. He was a remarkably elegant looking man, at one time engaged to Mrs. Barlow (?) (Miss Boniford) of Kalorama, near Washington. The lady, Mrs. Marshall, speaks of as Mrs. Hite, I take to be a daughter of Mrs. Marie Davison, who was your grandmother's favorite niece.

John Bull moved his family to Northumberland, after disposing of his property at Norriton. One authority, Buck's history of Montgomery County, already quoted, states that he moved to Berkeley County, Virginia, and built a mill on Opeckan Creek. This may be true, as his daughter, Anna (or Animus), who married John Smith, lived there; but he afterwards lived and died at Northumberland, where he was buried. He died on August 9th, 1824. The executors of his estate were Joseph Nourse, John Boyd and Sam Hepburn. Mr. E. T. Davison of Kansas City, Mo., a descendant through Anna Smith, had papers relating to the family, among them an original letter written by John Bull to his wife in 1776 from beyond the Susquehanna River, but it does not state what his destination then was.

William Bull, brother to John, lived in Norriton in 1769, being taxed for 50 acres, 2 horses and 2 cattle, and again in 1774, for 300 acres, 4 horses, 6 cattle and 2 servants. He is noted as assessor of Perkeomen in 1774. Buck's History of Montgomery County states that William Bull bought a farm of Henry Connard at Norriton in 1770. The Pennsylvania Archives of 1779 notes his taxation in 1779 as 40 pounds. He married in 1779 Martha Thompson and they had three daughters. Rebecca married to Henry Pawling in 1769. Elizabeth married to Christopher Stuart in 1773 and Mary, who died single. He died in 1787 at Norriton, leaving a fair estate, which was divided between his three children. The descendants of Rebecca can be found in the Pawling papers and those of Elizabeth in the Stuart memoranda by Gen. John H. Patterson, one of their descendants.

II.

Richard Bull, whose wife was named Paulding, was a brother of Thomas and uncle to John and William, already mentioned, moved away from Montgomery County, as the records show him to have had in 1769, West Whiteland Township of Chester County, two items of taxation, first, 240 acres, 4 horses, 6 cattle, 20 sheep, and 1 servant; second, 185 acres, 4 horses, 5 cattle, 10 sheep, and 1 servant. Bull's Mill, now Donally's Mill. Perry County, Pa.

Henry Bull's House, now Donally's. Perry County, Pa.

Peter's Church, 1763-65-66-68-71. Subscribed 76 pounds to building pews in gallery, 12th April, 1775.

From New Bloomfield, Perry County, Pennsylvania, it is learned that Richard Bull, with his son, moved to Perry County, where they settled in Raccoon Valley. This is said to have been about 1767 and there is no record later than 1775 in Chester County. In their new settlement they cleared out a field and planted corn. One statement shows that they were captured by Indians and held prisoners, another that they were driven off and went back to Chester County, where they remained about a year. They returned to Raccoon Valley, cleared out more land and located. The old log building is still standing on the property, which was warranted in the name of the son, William Bull, March 13, 1763, and now in the hands of Mrs. Fosselman and B. F. Imhoff. Richard Bull was buried in the cemetery called Bull's Hill grave yard, on the place now known as Donalley's Mills. The grave stone is marked, "In the memory of Richard Bull, who departed this life April 11th, 1799, aged 85 years." About his grave are those of his sons, Henry and William, and their families. The stone mill and house on the place was originally known as Bull's Mill, on property warranted to Henry Bull, August 18, 1767, 400 acres, and afterwards sold to the father of Lewis E. Donally, now owner of the place. Henry and William married in Perry County, where some of their descendants still reside. Others are scattered through the West. Robert, son of Henry, was a lieutenant colonel in the war of 1812, and was murdered by the Indians after the battle of Chippewa. His cousin John, son of William, was with him, but absent at the time of his murder attending to a friend, who was ill. The following extract is from the Pennsylvania Daily Press: "The readers of this paper have frequently dwelt with pride and pleasure on the bravery and good conduct of the Pennsylvania Volunteers, more especially at the battles of Chippewa and Bridgewater. We lately learned with unfeigned sorrow that their gallant leader, Lieut. Col. Bull, had been basely and barborously murdered by the savage allies of Britain; but it was not until this morning that we met the particulars of that tragical and inhuman event. We republish them from the Salem Register. Having some knowledge of the goodness of heart, gentleness of deportment, manly courage and soldiery conduct which characterized the late Col. Bull, we have bedewed with tears his mangled corpse. Does not gratitude claim from Pennsylvania some frail memorial to consecrate the memories of such men as Col. Bull and Adjutant Bull?" (John Bull, son of William, Lieutenant U. S. Army, War of 1812.)

The family record states that by strips of white muslin friendly Indians were decoyed by those who were enemies. Col. Bull was captured, robbed and stripped. The Indians pushed him along and put him to work. One of them shot him and tomahawked him, leaving his body.

In Tuscarora Township, Perry County, in the record of property it is stated, Henry Bull's heirs, 160 acres, grist and sawmill. William Bull, 358 acres, two acres mountain land; Robert Bull's heirs, 400 acres. John Bull, who was the oldest son of Richard Bull, lived in Chester County, as the records of St. Peter's church show in 1785 and 1797. He married Sarah Meridith and they had four sons, Elijah, Richard, John, Ross, and one daughter, Elizabeth. At some time he moved to Dover, York County, Pa., where his will is registered, dated July 11th, 1817, probated August 13th, 1817. Richard, third, the son of John, settled in East Nantmeal, Chester County, taxed one pound in 1785. Richard, Jr., and Jemina, children of Richard, Sr., moved to North Carolina about 1785, where they married, their descendants are scattered through the South and West, as can be noted on appended list.

Thomas, born in Providence Township, Philadelphia, May 28th, 1774, the only child of Richard not yet mentioned, settled in Chester County. He is noted on tax list of West Whiteland Township in 1771, and again in 1785, and on Chester County record in 1784-86-87. In the records of St. Peters' church he is first mentioned in 1785, and was vestryman in 1787-88-90-99, occupying pew No. 2. This Bull had a practical education as had the young men of his day and prior to the Revolutionary War and after it, was ironmaster at Warwick furnace, belonging to Potts family, where cannon and ammunition for Colonial Army were manufactured. On July 1st, 1776, Lieut. Col. Thomas Bull was appointed in command of a battalion of 652 men of Chester County, Pennsylvania, by the Pennsylvania committee. U. S. Archives, Vol. VI, 1776, page 1195. On list of names of Montgomery's regiment engaged in battle at Fort Washington, N. Y. Vol. III-5th-1776, page 730, U. S. Archives.

The following account of service of Lieut. Col. Bull is taken from a record made by his grandson, Thomas K. Bull, of Chester County, Pa., who testified before Elijah Bull, justice of the peace:

"In August, 1776, he received a commission (now lost) as lieutenant colonel in the Flying Camp in a regiment raised in Chester County, of which William Montgomery was the colonel, but as he (Montgomery) never appeared to take command, he (Col. Bull) became in effect the chief commander, and continued so until he was taken a prisoner of war. He marched through New Jersey to the Hudson river, opposite Fort Washington, where was one regiment from Cumberland and another from York, both counties in Pennsylvania, with General James Ewing of York County in command of the Fort Lee.

"On the night of November 15, 1776, Lieut. Col. Bull was ordered with a detachment across the river to assist in the defense of Fort Washington, where Col. Magaw of Pennsylvania was in command. The same night a council of war was held, the conclusion of which was put on paper, delivered to Lieut. Col. Bull to convey to General Washington, whose quarters were four miles west of Fort Lee, but General Washington having rode out, the paper was surrendered to General Greene and Col. Bull returned to Fort Washington about day break, where he attempted to obtain some rest. Awakened by the attack of the enemy, he mounted the only horse in the Fort, except one other belonging to the artillery, moved with his commands towards Harlem river, to place it in position, and returned to the Fort for further orders. While on his route a cannon ball from the enemy, the force of which was destroyed by striking a limb of a tree, fell at the feet of his horse. On arriving at the Fort he was directed to march two companies of reinforcements that had arrived from Fort Lee to Harlem river to be added to the command of Maj. David Lennox, who had been attacked by the Highlanders and driven back to a place called the White House.

"Returning again to the Fort, he was directed by Col. Magaw to go down the North river to call in Col. Cadwallader and on his way back he took on his horse behind him a wounded soldier and brought him into the Fort.

"Lieut. Col. Bull, not seeing any of his detachment present, immediately went out again and found them in the middle of the afternoon posted behind some breastwork. When Fort Washington surrendered, Nov. 16, 1776, he had been unable to be but little with his detachment, he having been placed on horseback by Col. Magaw to carry orders and the command devolved on Maj. Kilbraith. The enemy marched his command about a mile towards New York City, to a farm house, where from Saturday to Tuesday they were without food and on the latter day proceeded to New York City and were placed in a Methodist meeting house. The next day, after signing a parole, Col. Bull and his officers then had a house to reside in. An unknown gentleman sent him a half joe which enabled him to procure board and an opportunity to visit the soldiers imprisoned in Bridewell almost every day, where many were dead and dying.

"On account of the mortality of the soldiers, as was supposed, orders were given to parole them, in order to save as many as possible for exchange. Col. Bull succeeded in getting his men discharged before any others and all officers were ordered to Long Island with the farmers and his "billet" was Flatlands, where he remained until May 6th, 1778, when he was exchanged; the name of the first on the list was that of Ethan Allen of Ticonderoga fame, and the second name was that of Lieut. Col. Thomas Bull."

Another account of his military service says: "Shortly after the battle of Brandywine a portion of the government troops retreated to the neighborhood of Warwick Furnace, where they remained for some days; the officers of highest grade in the meantime visiting the mansion house where they were hospitably entertained by the gallant colonel's noble and patriotic wife."

His record is not all stated in the Archives and can be better explained. Made Lieutenant Colonel of Fourth Battalion in 1776. First Battalion in 1779. Second Battalion in 1780. Colonel of Second Battalion, Light Horse, 1780-1781, Chester County Militia.

From paper of Mrs. Rothrock of West Chester, read before the Society of Daughters of American Revolution, I take the following:

After the War.

"Upon leaving the service of the Warwick Company he purchased from them a large tract of land on the headwaters of the south branch of French Creek, where he erected a grist and sawmill, a smith shop and a fine stone mansion, where he resided until his death, in 1830. This property passed into the possession of his son, Rev. Levi Bull, D. D., and is now occupied by a fourth (sixth) generation of the family.

"While improving his private property he still engaged in business pursuits, and together with his son-in-law, John Smith, and with my grandfather, Robert May, he owned and carried on Joanna Furnace, in Berks County, not many miles from his home. This valuable furnace property is still in possession of the fourth generation of John Smith's family.

His active mind and public spirit were not confined to these interests, but having assisted in establishing the independence of the colonies, he aided in giving a permanent form of government to his native State. He was a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of 1790, and also a member of the Convention which ratified the instrument. He represented Chester County in the Assembly for several years. "He was," says Judge Futhey in his 'History of Chester County,' "a man of mark in those early days of our history. Fitted by nature with a strong, vigorous frame, a tall, majestic mien, and a stentorian voice, he seemed formed to command. Resolute and determined in war, he was an excellent manager and a successful business man. Active and enterprising he gave many young men employment and failed not to help the poor and friendless. His counsel was often asked, his advice taken, and many profited by it."

"About the year 1810 or 1812 Colonel Bull became interested in a project which enlisted the feelings of many of his fellow citizens in the northern part of the country, the construction of a turnpike road through same. This road was designed to run from Lancaster turnpike near the Warren tavern, to the base of the Welsh mountain, near Morgantown, thence by another company to the Blue Ball, and thence by still another to Lancaster, via New Holland. Unfortunate as a speculation, the road is nevertheless regarded by those who live along its line as a great advantage to the neighborhood through which it passes, and the public spirits are fully appreciated.

"Colonel Bull was a sincere Christian and a vestryman in St. Peter's church in the Great Valley, and, although many miles distant from his home he attended service there frequently as possible. When his only son, Rev. Levi Bull, was ordained to the ministry, he assisted in building and sustaining St. Mary's church, in Warwick Township, within a mile from his home, and when at the advanced aged of ninety-three years he entered into rest, his body was laid in the church yard of St. Mary's church. That church so endeared to me by some of the sacred and solemn associations of my life, will celebrate its centennial in June of this coming summer.

"He also joined in the temperance reformation a few years before his death, even foregoing, for the sake of others, the moderate use of wine, which the feebleness of old age made almost necessary to him, lest by his example he might harm weaker ones. His declining years were peaceful, and gently he descended to the tomb "In a full age as a shock of corn cometh in, in the season."

"Thomas Bull married, 28th February, 1771, Ann Hunter, a grand-daughter of John Hunter, who on account of his religious acts, was on the accession of James II obliged to leave Scotland. Going to Ireland, he was there when the army of William and Mary followed in chase of the fugitives of James II. With Anthony Wayne he fought in the Protestant army at the battle of the Boyne, and soon afterwards emigrated to America. Eight children were born to them, six daughters. Elizabeth, married to John Smith of Reading, Pa.; Mary, married to Alex Cobean of Gettysburg, Pa.; Ann, married to Walters Dewees of Chester County, Pa.; Martha, married to James McClintock and after his death to Judge Samuel Shafer; Sara died single and Margaret married to James Jacobs of Lancaster County, Pa. Two sons were Levi, married to Ann Jacobs, and James Hunter died single. From these there are many descendants living scattered throughout the country; many grandsons and great grandsons of Levi Bull are living and the former deeply revered his memory so well remembered in the Episcopal church. The old home in Nantmeal Township is still in the family, and is still visited with much pleasure by those who enjoyed the unbounded hospitality many years ago. For in that section of the State the interchange of visits between the residents of the great iron furnaces and farms was much alike that of Virginia so well known of days gone by."

The appended list gives the family line and branches down to the latter part of the 19th century.

A HISTORY.

Of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, in Warwick, Chester County, Pa., by the Rev. S. F. Hothckin, Registrar of the Diocese of Pennsylvania.

"I speak concerning Christ and the Church."—Ephesians 5: 32.

When my good father, the Rev. Dr. B. B. Hotchkin, moved from a neighboring State to Glen Moore, the venerable Dr. Bull warmly welcomed him, and their families became friends. It was my pleasant lot to be often entertained in the Doctor's hospitable mansion, and his son, Colonel Thomas A. Kempis Bull, kept up the hospitality after the father's death. This son was long a member of the Diocesan Convention, and his nephew, Octavius Bull, son of my friend of former days, Heber Bull, has been a delegate to the same body. While other sons, James H. Bull, Esquire, the West Chester lawyer, and Cyrus and Octavius, were also my friends.

Sometimes I had the privilege of worshiping in St. Mary's Church, so that my subject is familiar to me.

In a certain sense the history of Dr. Bull is a history of St. Mary's Church, of which he was the founder.

On March 16th, A. D. 1906, the Daily Local News, of West Chester, edited by W. W. Thomson, printed a sketch of Dr. Bull's father, by Mrs. Joseph T. Rothrock, the wife of the distinguished botanist (who has kindly aided me in the present narrative). It was read to the Daughters of the Revolution.

We briefly notice some of its main points. Colonel Thomas Bull was born in 1744, in Providence township, and was the son of Richard Bull. It has been said that the family descended from the Scotch Stuarts. Colonel Bull's wife was Ann Hunter, descended from a sturdy Englishman, John Hunter, who, with Anthony Wayne, was at the battle of the Boyne. He is interred at St. David's church yard, Radnor. Dr. Bull's mother, like Hannah, prayer for "a man child," and Samuel was given her by God, and she gave him back to God for the Temple service.

Dedicated Her Son.

When Mrs. Bull's son was born she dedicated him to God as Levi, or a Levite. The father was a Lieutenant Colonel in the Revolutionary army in the militia, and when connected with the Flying Camp was captured in an engagement at Fort Washington, in New York, and put in a prison ship, where Ethan Allen was in like case. A few grains of corn daily was the allowance for food.

I add that Lossing, in his "Field Book of the Revolution," Vol. 2, p. 660, says that the prison-ships were for seamen, but some soldiers were in them. The first, in 1776, were cattle transports in Gravesend Bay, the prisoners of the batttle of Brooklyn were in these vessels.

In 1778, hulks of decaying ships were moored in the Wallabout, a sheltered island on the Long Island shore, where the Navy Yard now is. The sufferings of prisoners were intense, and in 1779, they set fire to the ships, seeking liberty, or death. Colonel Bull's imprisonment seems to have been later. He was on Long Island for a time. Judge Futhey and Gilbert Cope's History of Chester County has an extended notice of him by the Judge, and we shall glean useful matter from its valuable pages as to others in our narrative.

Colonel Bull had much land, and a grist and sawmill, on the headwaters of the south branch of French Creek, near this church. His mansion passed on to Dr. Bull, and Colonel Thomas K. Bull's widow dwells there; four generations have held it.

Dr. Bull's father was a "man of affairs," and, with his son-in-law, John Smith, and Mrs. Rothrock's grandfather, Robert May, owned Joanna Furnace, now possessed by John Smith's family.

Early Lawmaker.

Colonel Thomas Bull was a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly. He was a natural ruler, being strong and tall, with the voice of a Stentor. His decided character shines out in the fact that when his superior officer surrendered in New York, he indignantly broke his sword. The good man helped the poor and the friendless, giving young men employment. His public spirit gave him an interst in a new turnpike, which was then perhaps more difficult to finance than a railroad is now.

This Christian man was a vestryman in St. Peter's Church, in the Great Valley. After his son was ordained, he aided in building St. Mary's Church here. He died, aged ninety-three, and was buried in this church yard, gently ending a useful life. His interest in the temperance cause was creditable.

The worthy son of an excellent father and mother now comes into view, as when the front row of forest trees is cut down the second row presents itself. The Rev. Benjamin Douglass contributed to my book, "Country Clergy of Pennsylvania," a sketch of Dr. Bull, which I will condense. He was born in Warwick, in A. D. 1780. His wife was Ann, daughter of Cyrus Jacobs, who was an ironmaster, near Churchtown. His marriage was in 1808. Fifteen children were the fruit of the marriage. These children are all dead.

Graduated Young.

Dr. Bull was graduated at Dickinson College, in 1798, "in his seventeenth year."

Bishop William White ordained him a Deacon in Christ Church, Philadelphia, in 1805, and Priest in St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, in 1806. He studied under the Bishop's direction. For a time he was in the Divinity School of the eminent Presbyterian, the Rev. Dr. Nathan Grier.

After ordination, Dr. Bull began clerical work at Morlatton (Douglassville), which he continued twenty years. St. Mary's Church was built for him, where he ministered almost fifty years, till failing strength demanded rest, though he assisted brethren in Christian work till the end of his earthly life.

Allegheny College honored him with the title of Doctor of Divinity.

In 1818, he served as Rector of the church of the Holy Trinity, in Wilmington, Delaware.

Let me note that this was Old Swedes' Church, as the church in King street rose later, and has been succeeded by the splendid edifice on Delaware avenue.

Tended Many Flocks.

After the Doctor relinquished St. Gabriel's Church, Morlatton, he took up the care of Bangor Church, Churchtown, and St. Thomas' Church, Morgantown, and St. Mary's Church, with the first named were permanetly in his charge. St. Andrew's, West Vincent, an offshoot of St. Mary's, was for a time served by him. St. Mark's, Honeybrook, was a result of his labor. The historian, Julius F. Sachse, thinks that St. Mary's was the first church erected in Pennsylvania after the Revolutionary War. At times the communicant list reached about one hundred names, which was large for a country church then.

Bishop Alonzo Potter held Dr. Bull in high esteem as a preacher and a friend.

In 1845 the Diocesan Convention, in Philadelphia, balloted without agreement for an Assistant Bishop. Dr. Bull was chairman and believed that Professor Alonzo Potter, of Union College, would unite all. After a conference with Dr. Suddards, Rector of Grace Church, Philadelphia, that gentleman nominated him. Dr. Bull's work in this matter was a lasting blessing to this Diocese. Bishop Potter's calm mind and deliberate judgment, like that of Washington, or the great English theologian, "the judicious Hooker," guided the ecclesiastical ship wisely and well.

I myself recall once walking with the Bishop near here on a visitation, near the close of his honored life. Doubtless the form of his departed friend rose in his mind among these surroundings.

Effective Work.

The clergy used to hold "Associations" in this region, lasting two or three days, preaching earnestly and personally in private applying the Blessed Gospel of Christ to souls inquiring the way Heavenward, by which many were turned "from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God."—Acts 26: 18.

Dr. Bull died in Christian faith and hope, in 1859, having been over fifty years a member of the Convention of the Diocese and attending the Convention of 1858.

As the night of death drew near, the glory of God and the good of his fellow men was still in his heart and the Church of Christ to which he had devoted his life with deep affection and into whose granary he had gathered many priceless souls, was ever in his thoughts, and he declared himself ready to depart to be with Christ.

I attended his funeral, though as a young layman. The funeral procession reached from his house to St. Mary's Church, a mile away. Clergy and crowds of people gathered there to pay their last sad tribute of respect to the Christian veteran. The Rev. Milton C. Lightner made an eloquent address.

In Berks, Chester and Lancaster counties, Dr. Bull's name was held in love and veneration.

The Protestant Episcopal Quarterly Review, of April, 1860, contained an anonymous sketch of Dr. Bull.

The writer speaks of his services on Sunday nights in the home when his father was in old age. It is a beautiful picture of a son leading in worship and having a father for an auditor.

Saw Church Grow.

In 1819, the Doctor preached the Diocesan Convention sermon at the request of Bishop White, on "How shall they preach except they be sent?" He also preached before the General Convention on "By whom shall Jacob arise, for he is small?" He had seen the American church grow till its power was felt in Asia and Africa. The Doctor "was a good extemporary speaker and seldom wrote his sermons fully."

A clergyman who officiated when Dr. Bull last worshipped in St. Mary's, "describes him as an aged shepherd near four score, with noble structure and erect form, among his flock as a fellow worshipper, leading the music and sending forth his manly voice in the Liturgy."

The saintly man was buried by the side of wife and children near this church.

"The end of (his) conversation (was) Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and today, and forever."—Heb. 13: 7, 8. His example is "a precious legacy to his brethren."

Bishop Potter, in the Convention address of 1849, spoke of Dr. Bull's constant and "laborious ministry," and of his reviving several old parishes and organizing "a number of new ones."

A Friendly Godly Man.

The Rev. Professor Hare, of the Philadelphia Divinity School, wrote me of the subject of this sketch, "A friendly, godly man, the possessor of a voice more than ordinarily good and a very popular preacher in the rural district to which he for the most part confined himself."

We turn now to a pamphlet, "Memoir of the Rev. Levi Bull, D. D.," by his special friend, the Rev. Dr. James May, once rector of St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, and later Professor of Church History in the Theological Seminary of Alexandria, Virginia, and still later a Professor in the Philadelphia Divinity School." The Rev. Dr. Shiras wrote Dr. May's Memoir. For an account of him see my "Early Clergy of Pennsylvania and Delaware" under St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia. His mother was of the Potts family and his father an ironmaster in Coventry. His Christian helpmeet was a sister of Bishop Bowman. I was once entertained at the Doctor's hospitable mansion, on the beautiful Virginia hillside. Bishop Stevens described him as "A man of singular piety, purity, meekness, fervor and force," and his fellow professor in Alexandria, the Rev. Dr. Packard, "as a model of what a minister of Christ should be." His brother, the Rev. Thomas P. May, was Rector of St. John's Church, Norristown, he was the grandfather of Thomas May Pierce, head of the Pierce Business College, in Philadelphia. His brother, Addison May, Esq., of West Chester, sketched his life for my "County Clergy of Pennsylvania," pages 186, 187 (Norristown, St. John's.)

From this digression we resume Dr. May's narrative of Dr. Bull, who died in his 79th year. He wrote an account of his own conversion for the "Theological Repertory," and it was reprinted as a tract by a Wilmington Tract Association, and by friends, "more than once" afterward.

Studied Law.

"Dr. Bull studied law, under the distinguished Lancaster lawyer, James Hopkins, Esquire. The devout mother painfully prayed and consulted others about his entering the sacred ministry, as did St. Monica, the holy mother of St. Augustine. Though she may not have had Monica's heavenly vision, her prayers were heard by God and graciously answered. St. Ambrose told St. Monica, "it is not possible that the child of these tears should perish," and St. Augustine turned from sin to holiness, and his writings instruct the Church of Christ today over the world.

"Sickness was God's loving correction to make Dr. Bull great. He had lived in open sin, but now was justified by faith in Christ's atoning Blood, and the love of Christ constrained him to enter the sacred ministry and necessity forced him to preach the Gospel.

Like Goldsmith's parson—

"Remote from towns he ran his godly race,
And never changed, or wished to change his place."

"We make an exception, however, of one year. As Rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity (Old Swedes'), Wilmington, Delaware, he served in the old church, in whose yard Bishop Lee is buried. During a year the communicants grew on the list from fifty to one hundred and fifty, fifty being "adult males."

Active in Ministry.

"St. Mary's Church was founded in A. D. 1805. The Doctor served St. Thomas' Church, Morgantown, five miles from his home; Bangor Church, Churchtown, nine miles away; St. Gabriel's Church, Morlatton, Berks county, "eight or nine miles distant, and he preached once a month in Pottstown, Montgomery county, twelve miles distant, and very often in Reading and in Birdsboro." St. Andrew's, West Vincent, and St. Mark's, Honeybrook, the result of his toil, were "one six miles and the other five miles distant," they were "offshoots of St. Mary's Church."

"He rode, generally, on horseback, through heat and frost, by night and day," over roads sometimes "almost impassable," but he was traveling to a cloudless and stormless Heaven."

Dr. May's striking narrative implies a riding of thousands of miles. We can see him on his faithful horse, like John Wesley in his evangelistic tours among the English miners.

Then we may see the faithful pastor of St. Mary's welcomed at some country house and the evening meal and family prayer, like that of Burns' uncle in "The Cotter's Saturday Night," then the evening gathering in the church in the house at "early candlelight," where miner and miller and farmer listened to the reading and expounding of God's Most Holy Word and soldier friends of the father welcomed the son of one who had shared with them the sufferings of the Revolutionary War. Valley Forge and Paoli were not far away and those dire scenes were fresh in men's minds, while the eloquent man strove to lead his hearers to the higher service of the Christian soldier.

In the Convention Journal we read that in 1826, Bishop White visited Morgantown, with Dr. Bull and confirmed 44. The future Bishop Kemper read prayers and Bishop White preached.

Church Flourished.

Dr. Bull reports at St. Mary's 79 communicants, a Sunday School had been recently established, and the congregation was praised by the Rector for its religious interest. A portion of the flock had been transferred to St. Thomas', Morgantown. The church there was just finished, and consecrated since the last Dioceasan Convention. The church was nearly paid for.

The Doctor suffered greatly from the loss of children and of his devoted wife, but saw light in darkness.

His country life brought God near him. As Keble sings in his "Christian Year"—

"Give true hearts but earth and sky,
And some flowers to bloom and die,—
Homely scenes and simple views
Lowly thoughts may best infuse."

So, like Chaucer's parson, the good man went on, gladly teaching his people from his own experience of the deep things of God. In his age he was reverently called "Father Bull."

His Best Sermon.

He exemplified Cowper's description of a clergyman whose life agreed with his doctrine, for a Christian life is the best sermon. For Dr. Bull to live was Christ, and hence to die was gain. Christ was in him, the hope of glory.

He had drunk deeply of what Milton calls, in "Paradise Lost"—

"Siloa's brook that flow'd Fast by the oracle of God."

But we must not forget that Christianity came to him and us as a gift from a foreign shore.

Irving's quaint legend represents the Dutch dame Von Blarcom as bringing the home-spring from Holland with her on the ship, the "Half Moon," to America to keep up ancestrial memories, and the Rev. Dr. Edward Hopper, in a poem, well compared it to—

"The living water from the skies," blessing the word with a fountain which would forever quench spiritual thirst; so England's Holy Church sent us her Divine Liturgy, which has resounded in this church for a century. Bishop Coxe, in "Christian Ballads," writes—

"every hallowed day,
I bend where England's anthems swell,
And hear old England pray."

Thus America and her mother England join in praising Christ as God.

But our services go farther backward and the Holy Psalms that echoed in God's Temple in Jerusalem resound here, according to Psalm 79: 13. "We will show forth Thy praise to all generations."

Years ago, I visited old St. Mary's grand church in Warwick, England, not thinking of writing a history of its younger sister here.

What Warwick Means.

Warwick in Anglo-Saxon is Waer-wic, contracted from waering-wic, (the fortified or garrisoned town), a translation of the ancient British name Caer Leon, the place where the English Augustine conferred with British Christians, as noted in Dr. T. W. Coit's "Early History of Christianity in England."

Coventry is also from an English name, a corruption of Cune-tre, a little brook there was called Cune, also Shirburn, the British termination "tre" signifies villa in Latin.

Camden makes the name Conventria.

Coventry has also been derived from a convent located there. It is in Warwickshire, and the early parishioners of our St. Mary's were evidently of English stock. See Drayton's Polyolbion, viii. Coventry was once a bishopric. The Cathedral was destroyed in Henry the Eighth's day.

Coventry is a city near the center of England. St. Michael's Church there dates from the 12th Century, in King Stephen's day. It has been renovated, and contains one of the finest peals of bells in England.

Welshmen were also here in Pennsylvania. Nantmeal is the Welsh of Honeybrook.

Better Than Cannon.

The cannon of the Revolution cast near this church showed military strength, but the church itself is a tower of God where Divine strength is gained.
